++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Cold with sunny spells and scattered showers. Patchy night frost.

This Evening and Tonight:
Rain in southern areas, perhaps heavy in places for a time, not clearing Kent until after dawn; many southeastern areas frost-free. Otherwise clear spells leading to frost in some rural areas, although scattered showers affecting northeastern areas, wintry on hills.

Thursday:
Some sunshine but scattered showers in northeastern areas at first, developing more widely by afternoon, wintry on northern hills. South mostly dry. Feeling rather cold, especially in east and north.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Sunny spells and scattered showers, heavy in places. Temperatures remaining below average with cold nights and frost in places.
